

Call For Submissions:

Casa Summer Salon: Making It Big in Lethbridge 2023

Artists have a unique vocabulary to address considerations of scale. They may describe works as ‘intimate’ or ‘monumental.’ They may frame references to scale in relation to the body, the environment, or the space in which it is exhibited. Scale is always an important aspect of creative discourse and a key element of our dialogue about art.

The Gallery at Casa is calling for submissions for our 2023 Summer Salon, and the theme is Making It Big in Lethbridge. We are looking for artists that are either creating large works, or interested in conversations of scale. Scale is relative to an artist’s practice; an artist who creates pieces the size of a postage stamp would find the format of a postcard large, while some artists produce work at the ceiling for a scale they can accommodate in their studio or production space. We are seeking submissions that reference your individual exploration of scale and size. Perhaps large, or maybe just large for you.

The exhibition will be running June 17 – August 19, 2023, throughout all the exhibition spaces at Casa.

Artists are invited to submit completed, or proposed, work in any media. This exhibition is open to all regional artists who wish to participate. We will endeavour to accept work from all artists who apply, but due to space constraints, there may be a limit on participants. Early submissions are encouraged. Proposed work must be sensitive to a broad range of audiences. Artists are invited to submit up to 3 works for consideration.

To participate, please send a brief bio and an image of the completed work(s). For proposed work, please include a brief bio, a short description of the piece to be made, and image examples of past work. Submissions can be sent via email to gallery@artslethbridge.org using Making It Big in the subject line.

Proposal deadline: May 13, 2023
